This is a Trans* specific brochure...

This is a trans specific brochure for Trans* survivors of violence. The resources in this brochure are intended for trans survivors and people supporting survivors.

Useful Definitions

Trans - An umbrella term that encompasses a wide range of people whose gender identity or expression may not match the gender they were assigned at birth. www.forge-forward.org

SOFFA - Significant Others, Friends, Families, and Allies

Cisgender - A person who identifies as the gender/sex they were assigned at birth.

To all survivors:

What happened is not your fault...

Sexual assault can happen to anyone regardless of their age, gender identity or expression, sexual orientation, class, race, appearance, ability or any other identity markers.

You are not alone...

Because of oppression and discrimination Trans* people experience high rates of violence. To know more, visit www.forge-forward.org

Possible Responses After an Assault

Your recovery is very much your own. Getting information and support for yourself or a friend/partner/family member may help.

The individual, SOFFA, and/or the community impacted may feel...

- degraded
- shock or disbelief
- fear, anger, sadness, anxiety and/or feelings of confusion and distrust
- numb
- shame or embarrassment
- loss of control
- one's gender identity has been threatened and/or challenged
- increased hyper-vigilance, assessment of safety, and fear of new people or new situations
- internalized negative feelings towards self
- physical changes like headaches, a decrease in energy and/or changes in appetite and sleep

These are only some of the feelings you may experience. You may also NOT experience these. Although there may be similarities in how a person responds to an incident, reactions and the process of recovery can vary.

Seeking medical care

Reasons to seek medical care:

- You may have sustained physical injuries and may not be aware of these due to shock.
- You deserve to receive professional support and care.
- You can provide evidence in case you choose to open an investigation.
- Your medical records are confidential.
- You have a right to access non-discriminatory services that are available to all survivors of sexual assault in Boulder County.

If you receive aftercare following an assault and have a forensic evidence (or SANE) exam, you are not required to interact with the police or file a report. Speaking to the police or filing a report is your choice. The police will pick up the evidence kit. Whether or not you speak to the police, you will receive a case number and a phone number to call in case you choose to make a report at a later date.

Was it a Hate Crime?

The law provides for enhanced penalties for offenders if the assault is proven to be a hate crime. This also makes requirement of proof for hate crimes more rigorous. Some hate-motivated offenses may not rise to the level of a crime that can be charged in court.

If what you experienced does not meet the definition of a crime in court, you might still feel what you experienced was hate or bias-motivated violence. If you do not want to report it to law enforcement, you can still report it to Colorado Anti-Violence Program that provides support and referrals to LGBTQ survivors of all types of violence.
Feeling overwhelmed?

- What are my options?
- Where can I talk confidentially?
- Where do I report?
- What if I don’t want to report?

Advocacy Can Help

Advocacy is listening, promoting, and supporting you on your journey. It is centered on you and your individual experiences, circumstances, and needs. Advocates are available to listen to you and to actively support and assist you. Advocacy can mean acting as a guide through the legal or medical systems, serving as a voice in the community, exploring available options, or just general support throughout your process as a survivor. All of the organizations below have advocates that can help trans* people and SOFFAs.
